

Diane Savino is the incumbent State Senator for New York State Senate District 23. She's running for reelection.

Thank you to SIDA, Staten Island's oldest and most progressive democratic club for the work you do in this borough.

Throughout my career and with your support, I have been able to pass over 120 bills signed into law, many of which have been landmark pieces of legislation including Medical Marijuana, the Wage Theft Protection Act, making IVF covered by New York insurance companies, and Paid Family Leave.

I have dedicated my career to strengthening worker's rights and am currently working on protections for gig workers in our ever-changing economy.

As we head into this election season and with all that is going on across this nation regarding the Coronavirus, it is important for activists like yourselves to stay safe and take precautions while campaigning.

As your Senator, I am doing all I can to ensure New Yorkers are protected during this time. I am proud to have had your support throughout the years and humbled to be your State Senator.
