S.I.D.A. President's Statement

September 2015

Our speakers for the September 2015 meeting will discuss the topic of GMO's (Genetically Modified Organisms). These are food products that have been modified at the gene level. These are relatively new products, and we do not know the long term consequences of eating these products. However, the corporations that are creating these grains and other products do not want American consumers to know which food products have been adulterated with GMO's: the House of Representatives voted on July 23 for the "Dark Act" – HR1599, known as the "Deny Americans the Right to Know" Act. This legislation would ban laws passed by state and local governments to regulated and require labels for foods that contain GMO's. [http://ecowatch.com/2015/07/24/house-passes-dark-act/?utm_source=EcoWatch+List&utm_campaign=8f4224190d-Monthly_News_7_31_2015&utm_medium=email&utm_term=0_49c7d43dc9-8f4224190d-86000097]

More than 30 states have introduced legislation to require labels for Genetically Modified foods, and the states of Connecticut, Maine and Vermont passed this legislation. Senator Diane Savino is a co-sponsor for legislation to require labeling GMO's in New York State. All over the world, countries have required labeling these products, and 26 countries have banned them. It is a betrayal of the American people to try to deprive them of this knowledge about what is in their food.

Another example of the way Americans are being kept in the dark about their food products is the lack of requirements for milk to be labeled when it is from cows treated with growth hormones and/or antibiotics. Unless a milk product specifically states that it has not been adulterated with these chemicals, one should assume that it does contain them. This is another area where we do not know what the long term consequences would be from consuming these items. Are the antibiotic resistant strains of bacteria and increasing levels of early onset of puberty due in part to the consumption of these adulterated products? Why do the corporations responsible for these products feel the need to keep secret what food items contain their products?

One of the reasons given for the need for cows to be treated with these chemicals is because of the horrible conditions in which they are kept. America's farms have come a long way from Old MacDonald's; now factory farms owned by large corporations try to maximize profits at the expense of humane treatment of the animals and at the expense of the safety of the food products they produce for American consumption. [<https://www.asPCA.org/fight-cruelty/farm-animal-cruelty/what-factory-farm>] The American taxpayers are subsidizing these factory farms and their atrocities towards the animals! [<http://www.theatlantic.com/health/archive/2012/03/overhauling-the-farm-bill-the-real-beneficiaries-of-subsidies/254422/>] Even as the Republicans in Congress keep trying to strip the farm bills of funding for the SNAP program, that provides nutrition subsidies for poor families with children, the elderly and disabled, including around 900,000 of our veterans, and the families of our troops in active service, they keep the subsidies for the corporations that control the factory farms. Both humane treatment of farm animals and the safety of the food products consumed by us should be given more consideration by our elected officials, instead of their repeated attempts to protect the corporations at our expense.

NYS Senate Bill S485A
[text from Sponsor's Memo]

SPONSOR: LAVALLE

TITLE OF BILL: An act to amend the general business law and the agriculture and markets law, in relation to the labeling of genetically modified foods

PURPOSE: To require the labeling of genetically modified foods and other consumable products made from genetically modified materials.

JUSTIFICATION: In the past few decades, genetic engineering has enabled the development of new foods and crops. Genetic engineering is a process which allows for the altering of the genetic material contained in an organism to change the characteristics the organism will display as it develops. The introduction of these new genes is no longer limited to genes from similar species, as the genes from animals or other plant species can be added to create new character traits within a particular organism. The genes are generally introduced into the cells of the organism with the use of viruses, antibiotic-resistant genes, and bacteria. The emergence of these new crops has initiated debate among countries, scientists, farmers, and environmentalists.

A variety of plants are being grown that contain genetically modified organisms, including corn, canola, cotton, wheat, apples and strawberries. It has been estimated that 60-70% of packaged grocery products contain some genetically modified organism ingredients. Consumers should be provided the information necessary to make informed decisions when choosing food products for their families. This legislation requires that the information be provided through product labeling requirement.

Marie Dwyer made a motion to close voting at 9:00 pm. The motion was seconded by Richenda Kramer. Mark Herman made a friendly amendment to change the time to 9:30 p.m. The friendly amendment was accepted by Marie. The motion to close voting at 9:30 pm carried. Paul Scublinsky, Bryan Ellicott and Cindy Lowney volunteered to count the ballots.

Vice President's Report

Marie Dwyer gave a report on behalf of Vice President Susan Chew and presented highlights from the July 30 Executive Committee Meeting.

Executive Secretary's Report

Executive Secretary Mark Herman spoke about the election for Staten Island D.A. He also spoke about the status of the Trans Pacific Partnership (T.P.P.) and the upcoming Presidential election. He suggested that we invite representatives from both the Hilary Clinton and Bernie Sanders campaigns to speak at a future meeting.

President Olbrich announced that invitations for the upcoming S.I.D.A. banquet have been printed and she mentioned that they will be mailed out during the week of August 24.

Issues Committee

Committee Chair Richard Reichard spoke about the status of the T.P.P. legislation He reminded members that he is trying to schedule a rally to celebrate the anniversaries of both Medicare and Social Security. He is hoping to schedule the rally in September. He also reported that Rich Florentino is writing a paper on corporate personhood.

There was discussion about how Bernie Sanders can get on the Presidential ballot since he is registered as an Independent. Richard said that he feels we should have a speaker that is familiar with election law. He said we should invite representatives from the Clinton and also the Sanders campaign in February or March.

Social Secretary's Report

Social Secretary Roy Moskowitz announced that the annual banquet will be held on October 1 at the Crystal Room. He listed all the names of the honorees. Roy also mentioned that he was speaking with Marie about establishing an incentive program for members that sell non-endemic ads. i.e. ads that we don't normally get. He would like to give members that sell these ads a discount on their banquet ticket. President Olbrich asked Roy to write up something for her to send out to the members. Roy also told members he had banquet invitations with him and asked who would like to take their invitation instead of having it mailed out to them.

President Olbrich gave S.I.D.A. members that are running for reelection for party offices and District Leaders the opportunity to speak to the members. The following members spoke: John Sollazzo (running for 1st Vice Chair), Belinda Dixon (running for Secretary), Tom Shcherbenko (running for District Leader 61st A.D.), Joann Olbrich (running for District Leader 64th A.D.).

Staten Island: Megyn Kelly is a hypocrite! As offensive and repulsive as Donald Trump's statements about women have been, who has been harmed by them? Meanwhile, every other man on that stage at the Republican debate has supported policies that are disastrous for the women of this country. All of the men vying for the Republican nomination oppose equal and equitable pay for women. They also oppose the right of women to make their own medical choices, without the interference of government and someone else's religion. Where was Kelly defending the rights of women against these policies? Every Republican candidate opposes raising the minimum wage; some even would eliminate the minimum wage altogether. Most of those earning the minimum wage are adult women, often the sole support for themselves and their families. Why isn't Kelly speaking up on behalf of all of those women?

Don't Be Unhappy with the Mayor

Who do these public opinion poll takers talk to? The latest poll says New Yorkers are unhappy with Mayor de Blasio. I guess those pollsters didn't ask the one million people who now enjoy paid sick leave thanks to our mayor. They probably didn't ask the hundred thousand parents whose children now attend public pre-kindergarten, something considered impossible two years ago. I wonder if they asked people who shop at Whole Foods if they appreciate our mayor saving them money?

Or maybe they asked people who don't approve of our lowered speed limits. I'm sure they heard from some who are opposed to people living in projects getting free Internet. And not everyone is happy that our mayor helped secure an extension of rent stabilization laws. Some issues will always be divisive, that's the nature of our democracy – but I have a hard time believing that the people benefiting from those programs are unhappy with our mayor.

I'm happy with the progress that our mayor has made so far. I didn't expect all our problems to be solved overnight, but this is a good start.

Fifty Years Later, Medicare is Still Debated

Medicare turned 50 on July 30. Before Medicare less than 50 percent of Americans 65 and over had health insurance. Today 99 percent have health insurance.

Having health insurance has greatly improved the lives of seniors. Today a 65-year-old can expect to live 18 years longer than a 65-year-old lived prior to Medicare.

It is therefore not surprising that the vast majority of Americans see Medicare as important to them, their families and the country.

The debate over Medicare that began 50 years ago when 84 percent of Democrats voted to create Medicare and a majority of Republicans voted against it continues today.

The only thing that has changed is the Republican plan of attack. Republicans understand that calling for the repeal of Medicare is politically unachievable. They are now calling for maintaining the current Medicare system only for those close to or currently receiving Medicare. For all others they want to move Medicare to a voucher system and increase the eligibility age.

Medicare is a pact between generations. Are older Americans willing to support a voucher system and raising the eligibility age for younger Americans? Younger Americans who have paid and continue to pay into the Medicare system that supports older Americans' health benefits.

They say elections are about choices.

When you cast your vote for president and Congress, you need to decide whether or not you want to make these changes to the Medicare system that will affect Americans who have been paying into the system for years.

If you are opposed to these changes, then wouldn't you want to have a representative and a president from the party that created and has defended Medicare for 50 years at the table when the future of Medicare is debated?

Wouldn't you want a Democrat at the table?

Our Lawmakers Should Back Iran Deal Now

We should be celebrating the success of diplomacy over war in the recent negotiated nuclear deal with Iran.

Our Senators Gillibrand and Schumer and our Representative Donovan need to show us that they support the Iran deal now and not wait for the last minute to make the intelligent choice.

S.I.D.A. Constitution

There has been discussion recently regarding the purpose and mission of the Staten Island Democratic Association, and the obligations of those who choose to join this organization. The Executive Committee felt it was important to put in the newsletter what the S.I.D.A. Constitution has to say in regard to these questions:

Preamble

We believe in the principles of the Democratic Party on the national, state and local levels. We believe that the successful furthering of these principles demands an active party organization in every community. We believe that such an active party organization can exist only if it is representative of all the Democratic voters in such communities. In consonance with these beliefs, we adopt the following Constitution, to be the guiding instrument of such an organization to be formed in Richmond County.

Article I

The name of the club shall be: The Staten Island Democratic Association.

Article II

The purpose of the club shall be:

- To provide an independent, vigorous, liberal Democratic organization in Richmond County;
- To promote the basic principles of the Democratic Party on the national, state and local levels;
- To encourage the participation of all Democrats in the affairs of their party;
- To seek and support candidates for public and party office of ability and integrity who are dedicated to public service;
- To promote measures designed to serve all the people and to encourage the appointment of qualified public officials and employees without regard to political sponsorship; and
- To further the interest and participation of all citizens in the civic affairs of our community.

David Jones

Support David Jones Wednesday September 16, 9a.m.

Please join me on Wednesday, September 16th, in support of long-time club member David Jones, as well as David Thomas and Rachel Goodman. We will be meeting at the Supreme Court on 18 Richmond Terrace at 9 am. This hearing is the result of a so-called investigation into the election of Councilwoman Debi Rose, our club-endorsed candidate who successfully defeated the incumbent, Democratic Party-backed Councilman in the 2009 Primary.

At this time we are hoping that all charges will be dismissed. This investigation is a classic example of a politically-motivated witch hunt. Former Campaign Finance Board chair Fritz Schwarz wrote, "... a criminal investigation of the ordinary campaign activities of one city council race when there is an agency that is fully suited to the job is not only unnecessary but a seriously bad precedent.” Known associates of Guy Molinari sued over five years ago and the case was settled at one-tenth of what they demanded. US Attorney Preet Bharara declined to investigate.

These cases seem to be a habit for Special Prosecutor Adler. When he prosecuted a different election law case he was rebuked by that judge for abuse of the grand jury process for bringing in slanted witnesses and permitting hearsay only when it hurt the defendant. Now, after seeking criminal charges against “the two Davids” he decided to enlarge his scope of targets by indicting Rachel Goodman, currently chief of staff to Councilmember Brad Lander. Adler sounds like a combination of Cotton Mather and Joe McCarthy.

As Councilwoman Rose said, "This is malicious, political and, I believe, it's racial. While I believe that these abuses are targeted toward me, they are a threat to every citizen's right to participate in the electoral process."

On August 13th I was privileged to attend, along with many SIDA members, a fundraiser for the “Rose Justice Fund” hosted by members of the City Council (I posted some photos on our Facebook page). We are planning something similar on Staten Island for the near future. I hope to see you at one if not both of these events.
